

"How American Troops Make the World a Better Place"

In the United States the military gives us hope and freedom. Without their protection our country would be a dangerous place. Because we have one of the strongest militaries in the world other countries fear us. They know it would be difficult to win a war against us and they have fear of us attacking them back.

When we have disasters our military helps. During natural disasters they help the people. They provide food and shelter for them, and help the police to keep peace. They also provide equipment and people for rescues.

Our military also helps provide food, shelter, equipment, and people to other countries in need. Sometimes when we provide help to other countries it helps to stabilize their government. In other cases the country is so poor that their government can't possibly help to save their people. The military also helps rebuild schools, homes, and roads, such as we are doing in Iraq right now.

Sometimes our military acts as peacekeepers. This means we go into situations where people are in conflict, and we stop them from fighting. This happened in Africa and Europe.

Because of the strength of the U.S. military, countries may be afraid to attack the allies of the United States. They know that the U.S. will get involved. This happened when Kuwait was attacked.

The American troops have helped to make the world a better place. They have provided help and relief to our country, and to others during disasters. Our troops have helped fight and win wars all over the world. The U.S. military is considered strong, and also a friend throughout much of the world today.
